COGNITIVE BEHAVIORAL THERAPY

MISSION STATEMENT: “To place India on the Global Mental Health map through evidence based practice, high quality training and supervision, socially meaningful research, development of indigenized models of Mental Health practice and extensive professional networking”

'Towards A New Movement in Psychological Health...'

Cognitive Behavioral therapy had its beginnings in the 1960's when Aaron Beck outlined the theoretical structure and basic method for CBT. With its pragmatic, action-oriented treatment approach CBT has become a widely used psychotherapy for major mental disorders as well as other disorders associated with our lifestyles. It has continued to flourish as an indispensable tool in the Mental Health Practitioner's armamentarium but has not obtained the clinical status and advancement it deserves.

There are now close to 300 meta-analyses on CBT demonstrating that CBT is effective for a wide range of psychological problems and disorders. Additionally, Eastern philosophy has overwhelmingly influenced the latest advances in cognitive behavioural approaches. Constructs such as mindfulness, dialectical thinking, and acceptance are no longer waves that ebb and flow but are steady streams that influence how cognitive behavioural therapists approach treatment (McGinn, 2014).

In the current times, the burden of mental illness and psychological suffering is immense in India but still remains largely 'invisible' and un-catered to. The mental health workers and professionals in India across all major professional groups have often felt and identified an unmet need for formal training and supervision in cognitive Behaviour therapy (CBT). However, no substantial gains have been made as efforts to systematize and develop the field have not taken the right path or momentum.

The Indian Association for Cognitive Behaviour Therapy (IACBT) is a unique and much-needed platform for students, professionals and the consumers of mental health services which will work towards the achievement of evidence-based Practice, Research and Supervised Training in CBT in India, as well as initiatives for realization and incorporation of the indigenous fund of knowledge that exists in this great Country. The IACBT is committed to work towards the establishment of a 'network' of trained CBT experts in India and also endeavor to play a strategic role in networking with CBT professionals all over the world. The Association also aims towards the dissemination of indigenous adaptations of the CT model worldwide through its engagement with the Asian Cognitive Behavioral Therapy Association (ACBTA).

IACBT GENESIS

IACBT GENESIS

The Indian Association for Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (IACBT) was formally registered as a society in January 2016. It was born out of the vision and efforts of many like-minded people, particularly Dr. Nimisha Kumar, its Founder President. Dr. Kumar had formally been trained in CBT in the UK and was established as a CBT therapist and trainer in Delhi. In March 2015, Dr. Kumar organized the first ever CBT conference in India – the International Conference on Cognitive Behavioral Interventions (ICCBI) at the AIIMS, New Delhi, in collaboration with the Dept. of Clinical Psychology headed by Prof. (Dr.) Manju Mehta. The Conference was extremely successful and the idea of IACBT was formally floated and inaugurated during the Conference.

Dr. Lata McGinn, a New York based licensed Clinical Psychologist and CBT therapist and then the President of the International Association for Cognitive Therapy (IACP) provided her expert guidance and support in establishing the IACBT. A draft of the memorandum and rules was circulated among like-minded during the ICCBI 2015 and with the signatures of ten founder members, the foundation for the IACBT was established.
